FACTS CONCERN NAPANEE'S FI

The Finance Committee of the Corporation of Napanee have by the Council to give them some of the facts that they have ascertained concerning our financial position as compared with other towns, and small communities. Before entering upon the duties of this Committee, the members of this Committee told time and again, yes, members of former council town was head-over-heels. From the last Government published, which gives the January 1st, 1915, we find Napanee has the lowest percentage Debt of any community in Ontario outside of the only reason that Pte. small a debt is from the fact that Napanee has never spent a dollar on other disposal works of any kind. Our per Capita debt, as tabulated statement below Napanee $34.35, Bowman's $95.61, Oakville $95.61, and you will readily see that Napanee is in a far better condition than has ever been believed.

War Summary of The Latest Events

Sir Douglas Haig continues to make feints all along the front from La Basse Canal to the point south of the Somme where the British and French lines are joined. These nightly penetrations of the enemy's first line trenches, after intense artillery fire, are intended in the first place to keep the Germans guessing as to the direction from which the real stroke will come, and, in the second place, to discover the effect of the British bombardment upon the German trenches and their occupants. The report sent out from British headquarters Wednesday night tells of raids during which patrols entered the enemy's trenches at several points. Near Angres, on that part of the front between Arras and Lens from which many observers believe the great offensive will be launched, a raiding party found the enemy trenches badly damaged by shellfire, and obtained evidence that their occupants had suffered from gas successfully discharged from the British trenches. Near Vermelles the Highland Light Infantry raided the enemy's trenches, captured 46 prisoners and two trench mortars, destroyed two of the enemy's main mining shafts, and returned with the loss of but two men.

A continuation of these raids may be expected until sufficient information is secured as to the condition of the enemy's trenches to warrant the belief that an attack in force has good prospect of success. It must be remembered that the points at which an endeavor is to be made to pierce the enemy's front were determined weeks ago, so that a sufficient number of large-calibre guns and an ample supply of high-explosive shells might be assembled. Reservoirs of gas had also to be provided and hospital arrangement made for the wounded. All this has to be done with such secrecy as to keep the ed statesmen, says that the allied production of munitions is at last in full swing. The French output surpasses all expectations. The British output goes ahead without a hitch, and from Petrograd comes news of intense activity in the greatly enlarged arsenals of Russia. "An iron torrent," M. Hanotaux calls the allied output of shells, "which may deluge the Central Empires."

We are agents again this year for "perfect" jar rings, the kind that gave such good satisfaction last year. WALLACE'S Drug Store Limited.

The pause at Verdun continues. On the west side of the Meuse, to the east of Hill 304, the Germans Wednesday gathered in their trenches for an attack on the French front. This was reported by French scouts, and the projected attack was frustrated by the fire of the French artillery. On the east side of the Meuse the French recovered ground north of Hill 321 and on the edge of the Thiaumont earthworks by bombing operations. The prediction made some time ago in Berlin that the German flag would fly over the citadel of Verdun before July first must be speedily fulfilled if it is not to be added to the long list of German boasts that have not been made good.

The Italians make progress despite the fact that they are now facing commanding positions and strongly organized defences that will enable the Austrians to put up a stubborn resistance. The Italian advance is most successful in the centre, where to the north of the Asiago plateau three formidable peaks have been recovered. In the Lagarina Valley also down which the Austrians poured in the first rush of the invasion, the Italians are pushing forward.

There has been sharp fighting between the Anglo-French army in northern Greece and the Bulgars, who attacked after a heavy artillery bombardment, but were beaten off. The attitude of Roumania is worrying the Bulgarian Government, and it is believed that a very considerable part of the Bulgarian army is once more on guard along the Danube to ward off a sudden attack by the Roumanians should they decide to enter the war on the side of the Allies.

Heavy German reinforcements have been brought up to the Volhynian front and actions of a most sanguinary character are being fought on that part of the front east and southeast of Kovel. That city is being thoroughly prepared for defence. Many thousands of men are employed in the construction of trenches and field works on the plains to the east of Kovel. At the same time the Germans are launching vigorous counter-attacks against Brusiloff's positions. The Austrians claim the repulse of Russian attacks near Kutly.

ULTIMATUM TO CARRANZA.

Break Between U. S. and Mexico is Now Imminent.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Full responsibility for the attack on the United States troopers by Mexicans at Carrizal has been assumed by the Carranza Government.

Demand for the immediate release of the United States troopers captured in the engagement has been made by the United States Government, with a further demand for an early statement from Carranza as to the course of action he has determined upon.

These are the outstanding features of communications exchanged between the two Governments within the past 24 hours and made public Sunday afternoon by Secretary of State Lansing.

At the White House Sunday night
President Wilson was in conference with Chairman Wm. J. Stone, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Representative Flood, of the House Committee on Foreign Relations.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee,
was present at the conference Sunday night by invitation of the President.

The conference lasted an hour. The President told the members of Congress of the contents of the communication received from Carranza Saturday and the Government's reply, and indicated that the situation was serious, and might require him within the next day or two to lay the matter before Congress. Everything, the President indicated, depends now on Carranza's reply to the demand for the immediate release of the American prisoners.

"My personal opinion," said Senator Stone as he left the White House,
"is that the situation is extremely serious. For myself, I do not see how we can avoid trouble. I am convinced that Carranza had determined to force the issue, and if that is the case the situation created is extremely acute. I feel now, as I have felt for five years, that the only way the Mexican situation will be solved is for the American army to go in and clean up."

ROBBERS HOLD UP TOWN.

Armed Men Try to Rob Bank at Ville
Marie, Que.

HAILEYBURY, Ont., June 27.—A desperate attempt to hold up and terrify a village, wreck and rob a bank in true Jessie James style was attempted at midnight Saturday in Ville Marie, a small village on the Quebec side of Lake Timiskaming, 25 miles south of Haileybury. The attempt was made by seven men, who between twelve and one o'clock broke into the Ville Marie branch of the Quebec Bank, shattered the door of the vault and attempted to dynamite and blow open the safe. Two young clerks named Damonte and Chener were sleeping over the bank and made their escape in their night clothes. Rushing into the village hotel the Bayview, they gave the alarm. The proprietor, accompanied by two guests all unarmed, on going out in the street found that five men armed with rifles and revolvers were on guard outside, while two others on the inside were making desperate

BUKOWINA REGAINED

Entire Crownland in Possession of Russian Forces.

General Brussiloff's Forces Now Occupy Kimpolung and the Capture of 60 Officers and 2,000 Men is Reported—Austrians Have Fallen Back to Defend the Mountain Passes—Southern Advance Slackening.

LONDON, June 27.—The occupation by the Russians of the whole of the Austrian Crown land of Bukowina, rendered inevitable early last Friday by the capture of three vital railway intersections in the northwest, centre and south of the province, became actually complete the same night with the fall of Kimpol-lung, in the hilly region of the southwest of the Crown lands, not officially announced, however, until Sunday night. With the city and railway station the victors captured 60 officers and 2,000 men, the largest number of prisoners taken by Gen. Bruzsiloff for some days.

The Russian official report reads:
"On the evening of June 23 the town of Kimpolung was taken after intense fighting. Sixty officers and 2,000 men were made prisoner. In the railway station whole trains were captured. With the capture of the towns of Kimpolung and Kutly we took possession of the whole of Bukowina."

The entire north-western frontier of Roumania is now lined with Russian troops. The Austro-Hungarian forces, whose positions in the Bukowina became untenable with the fall of Czernowitz, under the screen of stubborn rearguard fighting, have gradually retreated westward, and are now well in the thick of the Carpathian mountains once more face to face with Muscovite onslaughts against the mountain passes that form the doors to Hungary. The Russian drive toward these passes has already been set under way, with the Czernowitz-Kolomea and Czernowitz-Kuty lines as bases of operation.
West of Shiatyn, on the former railway, the Russians Sunday took two small villages, Kilikhof, and Touluk-hof.

Gen. Brussiloff's advance in the south is slackening considerably, however, pending the outcome of the battle in Volhynia and Galicia. In neither theatre have his forces been able to resume their advance which carried them far toward Kovel and Brody respectively. On the whole Volhynian and Galician front the battle which began with the Austro-German counter attacks a week ago, is still raging without either side making any substantial gains. Nor have the Teutons succeeded in developing to any noticeable degree the flanking movement heralded by the press of the central empires as the "doom" of General Brussiloff's southern wing.

Russians Make Gains.

LONDON, June 27.—The Petrograd report on operations on the Caucasus front says:

"In the Trebizond sector, in the region of Madourtiret Tepe the Turks at dawn on Thursday took the offensive, which our advance guard repulsed with heavy enemy losses.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 26.—Today's market was a very quiet one. It took little to swing the market either way, yet the prices were steady and the trading was within very narrow limits.

The bulk of it was hedging, but prices moved too slow even for that. There was some good buying by export houses, but that was offset by hedging.

The exporters were mostly after July,
and it looked as if some new business was worked, the none could be traced.

Haumont Hamel, north of light's despatch from Sir g does not indicate that ment referred to in the al report has any expe- nce. It merely reports lly has continued to be along the whole front and rtilillery actions have at many points.

armed with axes and revolvers were on guard outside, while two others on the inside were making desperate efforts to crack open the safe. Henry De Marche, the manager, lived next door to the bank and on making his appearance with his wife and child was threatened with instant death. A woman putting her head out of a window in an adjoining house was ordered to put out the light, having first been shot at.

With the second explosion in the attempt to blow it open, the safe was blown out of the bank building into a small shed in the rear. Following this explosion flames burst out, and fearing that the light of the burning building would disclose their identity, the robbers left, some say on horseback and others by foot. A little boy twelve years old named Marlow got too close, however, to the robbers who shot him down twice. Both bullets hit him in the ankle and his leg is so badly shattered that amputation may be necessary.

The safe had not been broken open, so the robbers got no booty. The robbers are still at large.

MAY STARVE PRISONERS.

Germany Plans a Systematic Course of Reprisal.

LONDON, June 27.—That Ger- many is determined immediately to institute the systematic starvation of British prisoners in reprisal for the British blockade is the alarming in- formation reaching here on unim- peachable authority.

The correspondent brought the in- formation to Lord Robert Cecil, Min- ister of Blockade, Sunday afternoon. Lord Robert said that he had been greatly impressed by the continued reports of the scarcity of food in Germany and that he trusted that this would not be made the excuse for serious attempts to cut down the ne- cessary supply of food for prisoners of war.

"If that should happen," he said, "it would arouse such a storm of in- dignation as to add terrifically to the bitterness of this, the bitterest strug- gle the world has ever seen.

To Prohibit Meat Consumption.

LONDON, June 27.—According to a despatch from Berne, given out by the wireless press Sunday, Adolph von Batocki, president of the German Food Regulation Board, threatens to make Germany a vegetarian nation until September. He announced on Friday, the dspatch says, that he was seriously considering a prohibi- tion upon the consumption of meat for two or three months, and he prob- ably will adopt that course.

German newspapers, it is added, were allowed to report Herr von Ba- tocki's statement, but were forbidden to comment upon it.

The Constantinople War Office is- sues this report:

"Caucasian front: On the left wing our troops on June 22, after a bayonet assault captured the greater part of the Russian points of support over a distance of 2,000 yards on the mountain chain north of the Chorokh River. The enemy for some time had displayed great activity and had fortified this section strongly.

"We also improved our position further to the south. The Russians made great efforts to capture the lost positions, but were repulsed with heavy losses. We captured 500 pris- oners and took a great number of tents and quantities of breadstuffs."

We also repulsed all Turkish attacks south-east of Dwivitzlyk, where we captured a great quantity of arms."

WARSHIPS TORPEDOED.

Italian and French Craft Sunk in Straits of Otranto.

PARIS, June 27.—The Ministry of Marine announces that the Italian auxiliary cruiser Citta di Messina and the French torpedo boat destroyer Fourche have been torpedoed in the Strait of Otranto, at the entrance to the Adriatic.

The Citta di Massima, which was being escorted by the Fourche, was the first victim of the submarine. The Fourche later attacked the under- water boat, which submerged and disappeared. Shortly afterwards the Fourche herself was torpedoed. Al- most all her crew was saved.

The Citti di Messina was a vessel of 3,500 tons. She was built in 1910, and carried two 12-centimetre guns and six 7.6-centimetre rapid fireers. Before the war the Citta di Messina was a merchantman, but belonged to the Italian naval reserve.

STORY OF A DREAM

Curious Slumber Vision and Its Sequence in Real Life.

A WARNING OR A COINCIDENCE

Whichever of the Theories May Be Selected as the Answer to the Problem, It Was a Singular and Puzzling Psychological Experience.

The following real life experience, which is interesting both as a story and for the psychological problems it involves, is related to the Pathfinder by one of its women readers:

"In a dream one night it seemed that I awoke and found myself lying on a mattress placed on the floor of a room entirely devoid of furniture. In my dream I felt considerable surprise at finding myself in such a situation, and I looked about in dismay and alarm. Upon trying to move I found to my horror that I was weak and sick, and I fell back on the pillow exhausted and much depressed.

"Just then the door of the room opened and a man entered. He was extraordinarily tall and was very dark and thin. Instinctively I felt that he was my doctor. I asked him where I was and what was wrong. Slowly and solemnly he answered:

"'You have smallpox.'"
"At this juncture I awoke, greatly horrified and agitated. All day my dream stood out with frightful vividness in my mind. At length in the hope of relieving myself of some of its unpleasantness I related it to several of my friends. Without exception they earnestly advised me to be vaccinated at once, and I did so.

"A few days later I was in New York city. As I walked along I noted many fruit vendors with quantities of fine looking white grapes piled up on their carts. The fruit was so tempting that I stopped before one of the carts and asked the young fellow in charge of it to weigh out two pounds for me. As he was waiting on me I saw him cast a furtive glance behind him, then despite my request that he give me my grapes at once, he seized the handle of his cart and with most of his fellow merchants trundled rapidly away.

"I looked in the opposite direction and saw a man, evidently a city official, who was ordering the few remaining fruit vendors to 'move on.' He was coming in my direction, and as I was somewhat incensed at the summary departure of the vender before he could sell me the grapes I wanted, I decided to wait and give the cause of the trouble 'a piece of my mind.'

"On looking up to address him I was startled to find myself face to face with the living counterpart of the physician who in my dream had informed me that I had the smallpox. Recovering my self possession as best I could, I said, 'Will you kindly tell me why these fruit men are so persecuted? Instead of idling their time away in saloons or on park benches they try to earn an honest living by selling fruit.

WHEN BIRDS MIGRATE.

Yearly Flight of the Wheatear From Africa to Greenland.

In flying from Europe to Africa birds cross the Mediterranean sea at a point where the water is so shallow that it is believed the two continents were formerly connected there. The land bridge, which it is thought formerly guided the birds in their flight, has disappeared, but the habit of crossing at this particular place still remains.

How do you suppose the little wheatear, no larger than a bluebird, formed the habit of migrating from Europe to Greenland? Probably he comes by way of England and Iceland, but at the best it is a long journey and seems to take the bird much farther than it is necessary to go. In the autumn he goes back to winter in Africa.

Doubtless some European water birds visit us every year, but the wheatear, so far as I know, is the only land bird which migrates regularly between North America and Africa. With this exception, no North American land birds leave the western hemisphere in their migrations.

What She Made Him.

The head of the house glanced at a bill from his wife's dressmaker.

"When I proposed to you, less than two years ago," he said, "I was rather wild, and you said you considered it your duty to marry me for the purpose of making something of me, did you not?"

"Yes, Henry," answered his wife.

"Well," he continued, "your efforts have not been in vain. You have succeeded."

"I'm so glad," she said. "What have I made of you, dear?"

Once more he glanced at the bill.

"A bankrupt," he replied, with a deep sigh.

Origin of Pajamas.

Pajamas are garments which Europeans adopted from the Mohammedans of India. The name means simply leg garments, and earlier generations in India knew them as "long drawers" and "mogul breeches." It is only of recent years that they have sprung into almost universal use in England in place of nightshirts—which some one characterized as equivalent to adopting trousers in place of frock coats—but references to the garments have been traced as early as 1828.

"Peejams," "pigammahs" and "pijammah" were some of former variants in use, and Thackeray wrote of them as "peijammahs." The standard spelling is only a recent agreement.

Increase in City Noises.

The motor horn and the taxi whistle have banished the rather surprising reputation for quiet which London held among many foreign visitors a decade or two ago. In 1896, again, the London of the early nineteenth century was described in John Ashton's "When William IV. was King" as "a very noisy city"—evidently in contrast with the comparative silence of his own time. But the noises he conjured up from the past—the watchman's call, the shrieks of the milkwoman, the chimney sweep,

DEATHWATCH BEETLES.

Their Uncanny Ticking and Their Trick of Playing Dead.

You've probably heard the deathwatch beetle oftener than you've seen him. He hides away in furniture or interior woodwork and keeps up a continual "tick-tick-tick" like a watch. Day or night you'll hear him pounding away. He's eternally persistent about it and ghostlike and uncanny, hence his name.

He makes the little ticking noise with his head, pounding it on the wood. It's the way he has of calling his mate, and his mate answers him in turn. If you pound on the wood where he is hiding he'll answer you just like he does his mate.

You may wonder how he finds his way inside a piece of furniture. He gets there when he's in the grub or larva state, boring his way through wood, paper or anything the grub can eat. The larva which eats its way through the leaves of a book is a cousin.

The deathwatch beetle has another trick besides that one of calling his mate by pounding his head on wood. When you touch one of the little creatures he folds his legs up beneath his body and makes believe he's dead. He will keep on playing possum even if you put him close enough to a fire to roast him.—Philadelphia North American.

DIVISION OF NUMBERS.

Rules That Will Simplify Some Examples in Arithmetic.

It is often convenient to know whether a given number is divisible by another without going through the usual process of division. Almost every one knows that however large a number may be, it is divisible by 5 if the last digit is 5 or 0. The following gives the rule for some other numbers:

A number is divisible by 2 when the last digit is divisible by 2; by 3 when the sum of the digits is divisible by 3; by 4 when the number represented by the last two digits is divisible by 4; by 5 when the number ends in 5 or 0; by 6 when it is divisible by 2 and also by 3; by 8 when the number represented by the last three digits is divisible by 8; by 9 when the sum of the digits is divisible by 9.

For example, the number 1728 is divisible by 2, because its last digit, 8, is divisible by 2; by 4, because 28 is divisible by 4, and by 8 because 728 is divisible by 8. It is also divisible by 3 and by 9, for the sum of its digits total 18, a number divisible by 3 and by 9. Since it is divisible by 2 and by 3, it is also divisible by 6.

To find whether a number is divisible by 7 you must go through the usual process of division.—Youth's Companion.

these fruit men are so persecuted? Instead of idling their time away in saloons or on park benches they try to earn an honest living by selling fruit. I think this is entirely commendable. Why are they not allowed to conduct their business in peace?"

"All this sounds very well," replied the man, "but there is another side to this question. These people are poor and as a matter of economy live very closely, several families sometimes occupying a single room. Not long ago in one of their habitations I saw on a bed one of their women suffering with a contagious disease. Under the bed was a stock of fruit which one of the men took out on the street the following day to sell. At present we are obliged to watch these people very carefully in order to prevent a general spread of this terrible disease, but,"—and he looked squarely at me—"if you do not mind having smallpox I see no reason why you should be prevented from patronizing the fruit venders all you please."

"For several minutes we stood there, and neither of us said a word. Then the dark man walked off in one direction and I in the other. When I had gone a short distance something prompted me to look around. I did so and was startled to see the man of my dreams looking thoughtfully at me. Instantly it flashed over me. 'He has had a dream of me and recognizes me as I did him.'"

There are few birds whose plumage is so variable as the ptarmigan's. Three times in the year its plumage changes. It has separate coats for spring, autumn and winter. Roman Sugar.

Honey was the only sweetening ingredient known in Europe till the last days of the Roman empire, when sugar was introduced under the description of "an Indian salt, in color and form like the common salt, but in taste and sweetness like honey." It came with the spices and other rarities brought by oriental traders, but nothing was known of the production prior to the eleventh century. The crusaders learned to like it, and the taste which they encouraged was soon partly gratified by the Arabs and Moors, who planted sugarcanes in Rhodes, Cyprus and Sicily and afterward in Spain and Portugal.

Odd Hair Styles.

Some of the New Hebrides people do their hair up in a bunch on the top of the head and stain it yellow, while the inhabitants of the Ombai islands pass it all through a tube, so as to make a kind of plume. The Marquesas chief's favorite method is to shave all the head except two patches, one over each temple, where he cultivates two horns of hair. No doubt this is to render him more a thing of terror to his enemies than admiration to his friends. His reason for shaving the rest of the head is to allow more space for tattooing, as if all the available skin of the body were not enough for decorative purposes.—London Standard.

One of London's Seven Curses.

There are in London thousands of poor folks whose principal meals come from the fried fish shop which, because of its evil smell, has been described as "one of the seven curses of London." Yet to a hungry man the smell of fried fish is a most enticing odor. George Gissing has described how maddening it was to him in his darkest days "to smell the fish he had no money to purchase," and how, when affluent to the extent of a few coppers, he "eagerly bought and devoured the crisp golden colored slices of fresh cooked fish—surely the food of the gods."—London Chronicle.

Go to Ikorongo, there are high hills!" He had also put "medicine" in a tree in camp. I asked M'ganga if he himself believed in this. He grinned quietly and replied, "Well, the rain has gone."

The Word Calico.

The word "calico" has a queer origin. Many centuries ago the first monarch of the province of Malabar, in Hindustan, gave to one of his chiefs as a reward for distinguished services his sword and all the land within the limit of which a cock crowing at a certain temple could be heard. From this circumstance the little town which grew up in the center of this territory was called Calicoda, or "the cock crowing." Afterward it was called Calicut, and from this place the first cotton goods were imported into England bearing the word calico.

Even though I came to China knowing that they did things backward, there are some customs here that I just can't get used to. One is seeing women wearing trousers. There are more women wearing trousers in China than there are people in the United States—men, women and children. I suppose there is no reason why things shouldn't be thus, but it will always seem to me that the pants are on the wrong side of the house.

The women look like clothespins. Their bodies are the same size all the way down, and their feet are so tiny that they go bobbing along for all the world like jointed clothespins. The women shave their foreheads, with the timber line almost at the top of their heads, so that the little patch of face below looks as if it were trembling under threat of an impending snowslide.

Their hair is pulled and keyed back as though for musical purposes. At the back of the head a Chinese woman wears a cushion of false hair, so dressed as to show her rank, so that a person skilled in the language of the hair can read her history, can tell her present plans and her future ambitions. A person up on hair can tell at a glance whether or not she is married; if so, how many children she has, and if a widow, if she is willing to open correspondence with a desirable party of about forty-five—object, matrimony.

In this cushion a Chinese woman carries her head scratcher. Her hair dressing is a preparation made of slippery elm. The person needing it can run out to the corner and wait until the carpenter takes a plane and shaves off a few curls. This the Chinese lady steeps into a thick, gummy smear, pours it on her head and uses it to stiffen her hair.

This layer makes the top of her head hot, so that every odd moment when she hasn't anything else to do she gets down under the mess and lets in some air with a darning needle. Her favorite time for doing this is at the theater. When the performance begins to drag she gets out her darning needle and improves the shining hour by making a rift in the roof as she looks around over the audience, lightly gossiping about who are there, what they are wearing and how awful they look.

Men in China wear skirts. Their skirts are in a garment that reaches from their shoulders to their shins and looks like a nightgown worn by a Cape Cod deacon. It has a tasty slit up each side, so that on muddy crossings the twinkle of masculine ankles may be

EMOTIONAL ACTRESSES.

Temperament on the Stage and the Task of Managing It.

You hear a lot about the artistic temperament in and out of the theatrical trenches. There's only one way to manage a temperamental woman on the stage, said a well known leading man the other day, and that is to be in love with her. I was never so fortunate myself, but I have seen it work out with others again and again. They hate the man who won't admire them, and they laugh at the man who does. Their nerves are always thumping them into action till their hearts are bursting and their brains are in a whirl.

One of our emotional actresses in her prime was the most febrile, fearless, radiant witch of a woman the stage ever had. She was always on fire, intellectually and every other way. During one engagement in New York she wasn't on speaking terms with any one in the front of the house, except one man, and he was always telling her how wonderful she was. No one else dared go near her for fear she'd kill them with the first thing handy. They're just like angry leopards, some of them. They must be humored, conquered with patience, firmness and kindness.

A well known English star, who has always been famous for being difficult to manage, used to hate the sight of a manager. She could wither any man who was not her mental equal till he literally crumpled to pieces, and she loved nothing better. There were so many who were not her equal too. She knew most men were afraid of her, and she kept them in that delicious state of dread. They called it "temperament." She called it something more fitting—brains.—Theater Magazine.

Words Often Misspelled.

Here are twenty-one common words frequently misspelled. Get some one to dictate the following paragraph to you and see how many of them you can spell correctly:

The "privilege" of "separating ninety miscellaneous calendars" arranged in two "parallel" lines was against the "principles" of the "superintendent," so his "niece" not to "disappoint" the "government" or cause it to "lose business" removed the "principal" calendars and thus "relieved" her uncle of a strain which might have brought on a "disease." Then she "believed" it had become "truly necessary" for her to "receive" her instruction in "grammar."

Rules of Knights of the Garter.

Except on state occasions Knights of the Garter are not likely to display any token of their dignity, but in former days Knights of the Garter had to look resplendent on all occasions. "It was an original law," we are told in a history of the order published in 1841, "that the knight should never be without his garter. Afterward he was permitted to wear instead of the garter a blue lace or thread round his leg when on horseback, but this has long been neglected. It is still, however, incumbent on every knight to have about him at all times (though not tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

VARIETIES OF APPLAUSE.

But There Is No Mistaking the Genuine, Spontaneous Offering.

With nearly every successful address applause plays a leading part. There are several varieties of applause. The common variety is the perfunctory handclap—a poor, weak contribution which makes a butterfly look long lived in comparison. A second variety is the charity offering of an audience to the oratorical beggar.

The speaker ends a profound declaration with a pause which is next door to an open declaration of war if the audience doesn't come across, or he works himself up in a series of mental paroxysms which impel the auditors to rush to his rescue before it is too late. All spellbinders pocket this variety of applause as real coin. Of course it is nothing of the kind.

The genuine issue in laudation is a spontaneous and volcanic eruption of approval and delight. It blows out violently from the subterranean fires of folk, and when it has reached its climax there comes suddenly and gorgeously from the midst of it a second and more terrific explosion, and as this is reaching its highest point a third and seismic spasm rockets up through bedlam and overwhelms everything and everybody. This is the real thing. It cannot be made to order, and it cannot be counterfeited. The prearranged

God deacon. It has a tasty slit up each side, so that on muddy crossings the twinkle of masculine ankles may be seen. When they want to catch a car they have to gather up their skirts in the good old fashioned feminine way.

Under their skirts they wear a pair of drawers fastened at the ankles with a bandage, with the ends tucked in. When a Chinaman has an important letter or note to carry he unties the leg of his drawers, stuffs it in and puts the bandage back. The bandage works loose, so that when he reaches his destination the note is usually gone.

The only pockets a Chinaman has are in his shirt waist, which he wears under his skirt, so that when he wants to get a dime he has to unbutton one side and slip in a hand. Even though a Chinaman wears skirts he has not yet learned about the First National bank.

The Chinese are a great nation to think of the handy little things—things that no other people in the world could possibly think of. You can run out on to the street almost any time and buy an ear tickler. Men make a living going around selling them. An ear tickler is a little puff of cotton on the end of a stick and is meant to combine both business and pleasure—the business of cleaning the ear and the pleasure of the tickling sensation.

His is not an easy life, for the peddler has to be constantly on the watch against tricky people who come up, sample his ticklers, give their ears a couple of good tingles, tell the man that they don't like his brand of tickler and go on their way.

The peddler's ingenuity has developed a way of polishing up the tickler so that the next possible purchaser may not know that the tickler has been weighed and found wanting by carrying along a little bowl of white powder. After a tickler has been sampled and declined he dabs the end into the bowl, and it is bright and fresh looking as if it were new. If you went to buy one you couldn't tell for the life of you but that it was a new one—until you had used it a time or two.—Homer Croy

Varnished His Own Coffin.

Tommaso Salvini was one of those men who take a grim satisfaction in making preparations for their own interment. He assisted in varnishing his own coffin, a magnificent walnut one, destined to be inclosed in a solid block of marble, with the curt inscription. "Tommaso Salvini, Nineteenth Century Actor." In the same way his countryman, D'Annunzio, has constructed his own tomb.—London Standard.

Hawthorne's Wife.

In one of the essays in his "Vanishing Roads" Richard Le Gallienne tells the following:

One wintry afternoon in Salem Hawthorne returned home earlier than usual from the custom house. With pale lips he said to his wife, "I am turned out of office," to which she—God bless her!—cheerily replied: "Very well! Now you can write your book," and immediately set about lighting his study fire and generally making things comfortable for his work. The book was "The Scarlet Letter."

Chameleon Scared White.

Madagascar is the home of the chameleon. In his book, "A Naturalist In Madagascar," James Sibree says the chameleon changes color for other reasons than adaptation to its background. He saw one that turned perfectly white out of fright when seized in the coils of a snake. When released it resumed its ordinary color. The Malagasy call it ranilabeloka, which means "naughty old boy."

Dead Wrong.

"What would you do, Jimson," asked Professor Brainfag, "if you saw a man fall dead in the street without apparent reason?"

"I really wouldn't know what to do, sir," answered the young student. "I think I should just let him lie there. It would certainly be wrong of any man to drop dead in the street without first giving his reasons for doing so."

When Cordova Was the World.

Cordova, Spain, was a brilliant capital of the world, with half a million population, when the rest of Europe was clouded by the deepest lethargy of the middle ages. In the year 950 Cordova was considered the world's fountain of learning and science, and Christian Europe turned to her for instruction in "everything from tanning leather to charting the stars."—Argonaut.

The Word Alp.

In Switzerland the word alp does not mean a mountain, but is used to indicate the little valleys in the higher altitudes, where peasants take their cows in summer and where in small butts and stables the attendants and animals remain for several months in the year. The cows thrive on the tender grass, and their milk is converted on the spot into cheese and butter.—Exchange.

A Servile House of Lords.

When King Henry VIII's name was spoken in his presence in the house of lords every peer prostrated himself with Asiatic servility. An entry in the records of the house gives the substance of a speech delivered by the chancellor on Jan. 10, 1541, in which the king's goodness and wisdom are extolled, and it tells us that whenever his majesty was mentioned, "which happened often," all the lords prostrated themselves, bowing to the ground as one man.

and everybody. This is the real thing. It cannot be made to order, and it cannot be counterfeited. The prearranged outbursts at national political conventions following the nominations are pitiable attempts to manufacture it. Claques and coteries of devotees try occasionally to produce it mechanically. They never do successfully.

All veteran speakers know it, and having experienced it, live on in the bright expectancy of the golfer who has accidentally driven 275 yards and believes that any minute it is liable to be done again. There are many communities which have never witnessed such a scene. They never will. For there are some communities that are strangers to all manner of response.—Victor Murdock in Collier's Weekly.

The Arab Steed.

An Arab steed of pure breed would probably be outpaced in a race by an English thoroughbred, but in other respects it outshines its western rival. It is so docile that it is treated by its owner as one of the family, and it has an iron constitution, for it sleeps out at night without covering or shelter. Nature protects the Arab horse with a thick furry coat, which is never touched by brush or comb and which falls off at the approach of spring, when the body and legs, which had been shaggy as those of a bear, again resume their graceful beauty and glisten in the sun like polished marble.—London Chronicle.

A Weekly Birthday.

Dr. Marks, who for many years was head of St. John's college, Rangoon, which the young Burmese princes attended, once granted a day's holiday because it was Queen Victoria's birthday. The king asked Dr. Marks what he meant by it. On hearing the explanation he said graciously, "That's all right, but will you give them a holiday on my birthday?"

Dr. Marks said he certainly would if his majesty would inform him what was the day on which the world was blessed by his birth.

"According to Burmese national custom," said the king, "my birthday is every Tuesday!"

The Memory Machine.

Amnesia, or loss of memory, is chiefly interesting to the psychologists as throwing some light on the nature of memory itself. A perfect act of memory consists of three distinct acts—preservation or fixation of certain states of the nerve cells, reproduction of these and, perhaps most remarkable of all, recognition of them as reproductions in their relations. Morbid states of the memory may refer to any of these phases of an act which is as marvelous as anything in nature. There are about 3,000,000,000 nerve cells in the surface of the human brain. They never die in health, and they are never replaced or added to. This is memory's machine.

DO SOME DEEP THINKING.

Help Your Mind by Going Into a "Brown Study" Once in Awhile.

"If the 'brown study' were more often cultivated many people would be happier and more clear thinking would be done," says the London Lancet. "It is in such a state that truths dawn suddenly and clearly upon the unclouded intelligence. It is in such a state that mighty actions are conceived, poems born at a stroke and mankind enlightened through the enlightenment of the individual."

"In this state of mind there is such a concentration of mental energy that the body is ignored. The mind, on the other hand, is so working upon the JAPANESE PATIENCE.

A Strong Man's Challenge to an Artist and the Result.

Maruyama Okyo was the founder of the naturalistic school of Japanese painting. He was born in 1735 and died in 1795. In the International Studio Mr. Harad Jiro tells this story about Okyo:

Tanikaze Kajimosuke was a champion wrestler. One day he called on Maruyama Okyo and proposed a trial of strength, each according to his own line of pursuit. He would show the greatest feat he was capable of by his physical strength, and Okyo would show his by his ability to paint. Okyo agreed. The next morning he was awakened by the sound of something falling outside the door of his house. He opened the door and found Tanikaze standing by a rock large enough to tax the strength of a dozen ordinary men. He had brought it, without resting, all the way from Mount Kurama, many miles distant.

Now it was Okyo's turn. He gave lessons to his pupils as usual, but spent every available minute in his private atelier, working very far into the night. Tanikaze called four or five times, but was told that the painting was not yet ready.

At last, after four months had passed, the wrestler said to the painter, "If you cannot show me your work today I think it is only fair to consider myself as the winner of the contest. I came here today prepared to take the rock back to the mountain."

"I have finished the work," answered Okyo, with a smile. And he presented to Tanikaze a roll of silk. Tanikaze slowly unrolled it—it was seven feet long—and looked at it in amazement. "Has this taken you four months to paint?" he asked. "Does this represent your greatest skill?"

His surprise was not altogether unjustified, for the artist had painted nothing except a stringed bow in its actual size. Then Okyo calmly explained the matter as follows:

"This is a picture of the bow you received from the emperor when you had the honor of wrestling in the palace grounds. The greatest achievement in it is the drawing of this cord. To draw a straight line over six feet long without anything for a guide is by no means an easy task. Just as you brought the rock from the mountain without resting, so I have drawn this line with a single stroke of the brush. Many a time in my attempts the line faltered or the ink gave out before the line was finished. I have experienced with the brush a hardship such as you encountered with the rock on your way from Kurama. Come and see the proof."

So saying he led Tanikaze to his atelier and emptied a large box full of papers and rolls of silk that he had spoiled in his endeavor to draw in a single sweep of the brush a straight line over six feet in length. Tanikaze was thoroughly convinced. He raised the drawing to his brow in token of gratitude and left Okyo, promising that he would treasure it and hand it down to his posterity and praising the artist for his perseverance and steadfastness of purpose.

THE LATE C. C. J.

Death came suddenly to I. Canniff James, Commissioner of Culture for Canada, while traveling on a street car in Araric about five o'clock Friday. Heart failure was the death.

For the past week Dr. James' wife, her father, Mr. J. sen, of Cobourg, and her son, W. R. Riddell, had been at the Queen's Royal Hotel, on the Lake. Friday Dr. James' St. Catharines to receive treatment. While he was in the street car a soldier behind him noticed the peculiar position Dr. James was sitting, and the car was stopped it was found he was dead. Dr. F. S. Green called to the Railway Commission, where the body had been found. He stated that death was instantaneous.

Dr. James' son, Lieut. W. of the 124th Battalion, is at the Niagara camp, and was staying at Niagara Falls.

For twenty-five years James, C.M.G., M.A., L.L.L. S., had been a faithful public servant. He was an expert on agricultural matters and had accomplished many lasting reforms. Lately he had been engaged in war work, traveling the country, meeting farmers and other classes of producers, organizing the producing Canada so that the maximum power could be reached in the crisis. Dr. James made a plea for conservation of the land when he spoke a couple of days ago at the annual meeting of the Canadian National Exhibition.

He was born in Napanee, June 14, 1863, the son of James, J.P., who was of the cent, and Ellen Canniff, of from United Empire Loyalists. He was educated at the Public High schools in Napanee and at Victoria College, whence he graduated in 1883 with a gold medal in natural science, and took his degree of Master of Science in 1886.

He was appointed assistant at the Cobourg Collegiate in 1883 and remained there. He then became professor of agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and held the position until 1891. Dr. James played a leading part in bringing about the affiliation of the Agricultural College with the University of Toronto. As a result of this relationship thus established in the institution at Guelph he was able to receive from the University the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture.

DEPUTY MINISTER FOR:

In June, 1891, Dr. James was appointed Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Secretary of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, which he held for twenty years.

Dr. James resigned his position as Deputy Minister of the Department of Agriculture on June 28, 1912, at the request of Mr. Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, to make an investigation into the conditions and needs of the Dominion and to prepare a plan for co-operation between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

The mind, on the other hand, is so working upon the subject which concerns it, is so intent upon its own affairs, that the external world is obliterated, and any bodily discomfort that may have been pre-existing is now negligible and unnoticed."

The Lancet says the relationship between mental activity and the bodily state is not realized with sufficient frequency or with sufficient thoroughness by the European of today. "The average man is too engrossed with his bodily pabulum, and in caring for the needs of the body he neglects the needs of the mind."

Wisdom Teeth.

The wisdom teeth are the two last molar teeth to grow. They come one on each side of the jaw and arrive somewhere between the ages of twenty and twenty-five years. The name is given them because it is supposed that when a person has developed physically and mentally to the point where he has secured these last two teeth he has also arrived at the age of discretion. It does not necessarily mean that one who has cut his wisdom teeth is wise, but that, having lived long enough to grow these, which complete the full set of teeth, the person has passed sufficient actual years that if he has done what he should to fit himself for life he should have come by that time at the age of discretion or wisdom. As a matter of fact, these teeth grow at about the same time in people whether they are wise or not.

Color Harmony.

The key to all color harmony is simply this—that kindred or related colors harmonize, go well together, while unrelated colors are antagonistic to each other. Those colors are kindred which are side by side on the spectrum band or the color circuit. Red is kindred to orange because orange is an admixture of red and yellow; orange is kindred to yellow because of the yellow in the orange; yellow is akin to green because green is an admixture of yellow and blue.

Courtship in South America.

A very curious method of courting is adopted by the Zaparos, a tribe of South America. The love stricken young man goes out hunting and on his return throws his game at the feet of the woman on whom he has set his affections. If she takes up the game, lights the fire and commences to cook, he knows his suit is accepted. If not he knows he is rejected.

THE PILOT SNAKE.

He is a Bold Burglar, and Birds Are His Chief Victims.

Maybe you've been in the woods some day and heard a squawking and fluttering in a tree over your head. You look and see a pair of frightened birds darting this way and that about their nest on a limb. You look closer, and you see a long, black snake creeping along the limb to the nest. In a minute he will have devoured the young birds or eggs in the nest and then stretch out on the limb for his afternoon nap. The name of this robber is the pilot snake.

He's one of the boldest burglars among our snakes, and birds are his principal victims. He can climb trees, clamber over bushes and race over the ground with equal speed. He grows to be from four to six feet long, and in the woods he looks terrible, but he isn't.

He's entirely nonvenomous, and he doesn't "charm" birds, as many people believe. It may be that a bird will become so frightened at seeing one of these reptiles attacking her nest that she will become virtually helpless. But as for charm, that's all a myth. The pilot snake doesn't need to charm his prey. He's too good a climber.

Often the pilot snake is mistaken for the blacksnake. The latter has a white throat and is bluish rather than black. The young pilot snake has white spots. In addition to birds and eggs, it eats insects and even small animals. It will climb a tree and crawl into a squirrels' nest to devour the young squirrels.—Our Dumb Animals.

WEIGHT AND LONG LIFE.

Don't Get Too Heavy After You Pass the Age of Thirty.

Recent investigations show that the longest life and best health are not to be found among those of average build at any particular age. On the contrary, it is discovered that in those at the younger age who are slightly overweight and at the older ages among those who are distinctly under weight the longest life and best health will be found.

Overweight above thirty odd years is a definite disadvantage to health. It means staleness, lack of elasticity, clogged up tissues and lack of the power of adaptability to invading germs.

Men from twenty to twenty-four can be accepted as healthy and for a long life fifty to sixty pounds above normal. Less excess weight is permissible between twenty-five and fifty and increasingly less as you go up. There are one-third more deaths among men between sixty-five and eighty who are fifty pounds to sixty pounds fatter than they should be for a given height.

At the ages of thirty-four to forty-five from thirty-five pounds to forty-five pounds heavier weight than a man should be doubles his risk of death. For any one above thirty-five who is thirty pounds too obese life insurance companies hereafter will consider poor risks or raise their insurance rates.—London Ideas.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The Committee wishes to extend its very sincere thanks to Miss Jessie Robinson and the pupils of her school at Roblin, for collecting and sending us $2.50 for our patriotic work.

We are also much indebted to Mr. W. P. Deroche, Clerk of the Crown, for his kindness in donating a large supply of papers, pamphlets and books to be used in raising fund for our work; and we are very grateful to Mr. Deroche and his friends for their generosity.

We have also this week received an official acknowledgment from Lady Jellicoe, expressing her grateful thanks for the splendid gift of hospital supplies for a naval hospital. The case arrived in very good condition, and was sent on to a naval hospital where Lady Jellicoe knows the contents will be much appreciated. It is very encouraging to our workers to know of the appreciation which all our donations have met with.

One of our workers expressed the opinion the other day, that people need not so greatly regret the lack of transportation facilities on the river and bay this summer, for if they will only come to our room and work, they may look out from our spacious windows upon one of the prettiest views in Napanee or its neighbourhood.

Therefore, we would ask all those interested, and wishing to participate in our work to come and verify the above claim.

Our room is open every Thursday and Saturday afternoon from 2.30 to 5.20 o'clock, when some of our workers are always present, and gladly receive any donations sent in. In this connection we wish to record with our sincere thanks the receipt of a parcel of most acceptable clothing for French and Belgian Relief, sent in on Saturday, 24th inst., from kind friends who have previously contributed in like manner.

The Wild Beet.

Beets were first found growing wild in sandy soils near the sea in Europe and western Asia. The wild beet still found there is regarded by authority as the original type. This wild beet is slender rooted and has a taste so different from the beet we know today that one must consider the first man who tasted one and thought it possible to develop had gifts of hope and imagination far beyond ordinary. The beet has been cultivated since 200-300 B. C.

Old Time Railway Travel.

Third class passenger coaches in England used to be coupled on next to the engine. The travelers came in for terrible treatment when any accident occurred. At times the engine was driven tender first, in which case frozen hands could be warmed at the smoke-stack. The passengers were packed, seventy of them into a truck eighteen feet in length by seven and a half in width. There was no roof and not, as a rule, proper protection at the sides.—Exchange.

HER BORROWED ROSE.

It Brought an Actress the Most Perilous Moment of Her Life.

"The only time I ever was a thief saved my life," said Rose Coghan once. "My sister-in-law, Louisa Thornton, was playing in 'Colleen Bawn' in Scotland. I was Anne Chute, one of the bridesmaids, and I always dressed in Louisa's room with her.

"This particular night she was ill, and her understudy went on. Now, it happened that I had longed and longed to wear a certain costume of Louisa's. It wasn't one bit suitable for a girl of my age in a bridesmaid part, being made of heavy white corded silk with a long court train and all the fixings, but I adored it.

"I dressed up in it and went out to wait for the cue with the other girls. Just as we were ready to go on some one behind me said, 'Rose, your dress is on fire!'

"I think that is the most fearful word that can sound in a theater—'Fire!' My train had caught fire from one of the little gas footlights, unprotected then.

"The girls in their light dresses were trying to get away from me, and the nearest man, Hardress, was handcuffed. I crushed my train in my hands to smother the creeping flame and backed off down the steps under the stage. A man down there threw a heavy cloak over me, and I fainted. I was burned badly around my hands and arms and neck, but the heavy silk dress saved me."

The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are without perhaps any exception the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sums he never possessed and can never pay, the rich to be squeezed of all he possesses, while those only can hope to escape who are members of families sufficiently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor should he attempt extortion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the avarice of the sultan.

Even the governors of the provinces suffer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they squeeze the agriculturist and the peasant so are they in turn squeezed by the sultan and his viziers, and should they fail by constant presents to maintain a good opinion at the court they can expect only imprisonment and often death.

BORDEN GOVERNMENT AND RECRUITING

What the shrewdest critics complain of is not the slackness of the Government in recruiting, but the wasteful and inefficient methods it employs. Common sense and an eye to economy are the two things most needed at headquarters just now. The posthumous Kitchener tributes to Major General Sir Sam Hughes are a pale substitute for real ideas on the part of the Minister of Militia. The General opinion is that if Sir Sam did less prancing and more hard work things might get along better.

It goes without saying that no Canadian Government could favor compulsory service of Canadians in a war three thousand miles distant. Our assistance to the Mother Country in this great world war is a true gift of the spirit and how eager that spirit it may be seen by the measure of out help already. To coerce that spirit by compulsory service would be to wrench if not to sever the strongest tie that binds the British Empire together. It is a safe prophecy that there will never be conscription in Canada except in defence of our own shores and then the chances are that it will not be needed. Not to put too fine a point on it, the Militia Act covers the ground already and no further legislation would be needed.

Meanwhile there is no valid reason why the Government should not inaugurate a system of registration which would serve the purpose of providing a list of eligible recruits and protect workers who are needed at home from the indiscriminate importunities of the urgiers. What the recruiters need above everything else is a definite statement of those who can be approached without detriment to the industrial welfare of the country. If the five hundred thousand mark set by the Borden Government is to be anything more than stage thunder for the Germans to hear, it must be arrived at in a reasonable way. The out o'works, the idlers, the young men with no responsibilities—and the woods are full of them—are the ones to be reached. The present methods reach too few of this sort and too good enough to supplant a husky young Canadian lieutenant who knows his book. The next time Major General Sir Sam Hughes goes to England he should discuss this matter with the War Office. It is far more important to Canada than his views on the Ypres salient or his high opinion of Colonel John Wesley Allison.

Another leak that can be stopped is the matter of double pay to M. P. colonels who are supposed to be raising regiments but who are really raising the wind. The difficulty can be solved very easily. A man is an M.P., or a colonel, according to the duty on which he is actively engaged. If his duty calls him to the House of Commons, pay him his sessional indemnity as a Member of Parliament, if his duty keeps him at the head of his regiment pay him as a colonel of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Separation allowances might be looked into. Many poor but proud people refuse to bleed their country by taking the separation allowances to which they are fully entitled. But all the people in Canada are not poor and proud. Quite a few of them are rich and greedy and believe in taking all that's coming to them. In one case that I have in mind—and it is only one of many—the mother of a Canadian officer who is in receipt of his full civil salary of $9,000 a year while he is on duty at Shorncliffe, draws his full separation allowance and applies it to the rent of an expensive apartment which she keeps locked up while she is in England to be near her son. The Militia Department could save this country a lot of money by paying separation allowances only where separation allowances are needed to keep want from the door. People who regard the separation allowance as extra pocket money handed out by a generous country should be given to understand that they are nothing more than spongers.

Another costly abuse is—batmen. Winston Churchill drew attention to this increasing horde of non-combatants, some two hundred and fifty thousand of them employed in valeting officers when they might be better engaged in fighting. The batman is an English institution. He is a relic of the old days when the British army was officered entirely by aristocrats who were accustomed to a man-servant in times of peace. As the British army is constituted to-day, an army of citizens, most of whose officers have been accustomed to button their own suspenders, and lace their own shoes, the batman is an anachronism and a snobbish one at that. And if he is out of place in the British army he is much more so in our Canadian army whose object he is to prove themselves good soldiers and stout democrats all through the piece. Nothing can be more ludicrous than some young sprig of a lieutenant, with a fourteen collar and an Adam's apple that works up and down like an elevator, stalking along the street with a big, burly batman ten paces to the rear. What right has a lieutenant, who never had any more valeting before than a Greek would give his shoes for five cents,—what right has he to keep a strong man out of the fighting just to comb his hair for him? A colonel may have some use for a batman—because a colonel has many duties—but even a colonel would be better without one, because pulling on one's own boots is the best extension exercise in the world for improving the wind and taking down the paunch. The batman draws a fighter's pay and he ought to be allowed to do a fighter's work. When this war is over we want our Canadian officers to be good

TWELVE THOUSAND CANADIANS CASUALTIES

Ottawa, June 26.—Ten thousand names have been added to the casualty lists issued by the War Department since the G. their first attack on the front on June 2. As approximately 100,000 casualties had previously been reported, this means that the casualties equal the total of the Canadian contingent which was in the latter part of 1914.

It is likely that the total number of Canadian casualties will exceed twelve thousand, so expected that so long as the Canadian contingent is holding the line with ordinary condition warfare, the casualties will be about 100 to 200 per day.

BYE-ELECTION IN NORTH

F. Wellington Hay of Perth to oppose John McCreary, the Conservative nominee of the Conservatives in the bye-election rendered necessary by the resignation of James McCreary, former Conservative member for Perth, in the bye-election of July 10th. The bye-election in this riding was 1117.

In spite of this large number of votes, the Government is about the seat. Their record since the last election has been very poor and indications that North I to their disappointment efforts have been made by Mr. Ferguson and Hon. J. A. Macdonald to drag the battle, as it appeared in the House, into provincial politics. This attempt to stir up Ontario is likely to be repudiated.

The stand of the Liberal government was clearly shown in the session of the legislature made by Mr. Rowell to be reached. The present methods reach too few of this sort and too many others whose real duty and highest usefulness is at home.

Many invidious comparisons have been made as to what this province or that province is doing in the way of recruiting. It has been said, for example, that the West is more loyal than the East because proportionately it has furnished more men for the war. This is only a half truth which disappears when we consider that the West is largely made up from young men of the East whom the hazard of of new fortunes took to that part of the country. As a matter of fact all the provinces are doing their duty. The fault lies in the system of recruiting, which overworks some parts of Canada and underworks others.

For example, one great recruiting city in Ontario is at present the centre for nine regiments in process of formation. If two regiments instead of nine were recruited at a time the results would prove much better. Not only would two regiments fill up more quickly but the expense of maintaining a skeleton organization for the other seven would be cut out until their turn came. As matters stand now the best method has been chosen to kill time and keep Canadian regiments from the front as long as possible. Under this plan some regiments have been recruiting ever since the war started, others have got as far as Bermuda. When one reflects that nothing chafes an eager soldier like inaction, one can easily see what a depressing effect these stupid delays must have on recruiting.

Another discouragement is the way in which trained regiments from Canada are broken up after they reach England. At St. Julien, Festubert, Langemark, at the bloody salient of Ypres the Canadians have earned a name for themselves and by the same token they have earned the right to keep that name for their own glory and inscribe it on their own banners. Regiments recruited in Canada should receive some assurance that they will be kept together when they reach the firing line and that chums who enlisted together will not be drafted to different parts of the field. The Canadians have shown their mettle. They need no "steading" from British battalions. They are as good soldiers as any in the world. What's more their officers, lately at least, have been thoroughly well trained, as well trained, at all events as the officers England is now providing for her citizen army, and should be allowed to retain their commands after reaching the front. We have yet to see the Eton boy who is work. When this war is over we want our Canadian officers to be good Canadians still, not poor imitations of the British peerage. Cut out the batman.

Knights Templars.

During the latter half of the eleventh century pilgrims to Jerusalem began to be persecuted by the Turks or Saracens then in possession of the Holy Land. Nine noble knights formed a brotherhood with the object of protecting the pilgrims. The cause spread rapidly over Europe, and the knights grew to legions in number. Vows of chastity, obedience and poverty were taken, and the order, from merely protecting the pilgrims, took upon itself the task of recovering the Holy Land from the grip of the infidels. About 1120 they were given a place in the enclosure of the temple on Mount Moriah, and hence the name Templars, or Knights of the Temple of Solomon.

Persian Shawls.

The "shal" of Kerman—whence our word "shawl"—is made of goats' hair. Like the carpets, the shawl patterns are learned by heart, and the work is even finer. Children also do this work. The finest product is a fir cone pattern, a rich color effect, made especially for the governor of the province, who wears it as a robe of honor on the Persian New Year's day.

Well Supplied.

An inveterate wit and punster asked the captain of a craft loaded with boards how he managed to get dinner on the passage. "Why," replied the skipper, "we always cook aboard." "Cook a board, do you?" rejoined the wag. "Then I see you have been well provided with provisions this trip, at all events."—London Tit-Bits.

Goldfish.

It may not be generally known that there is cruelty in the keeping of goldfish. Half of such captives die from sheer want of rest. Fish have eyes so formed that they cannot endure the light. In a glass vessel they are in an entirely wrong place, as is evident from the way in which they dash about and go around and around until fairly worn out.

In the Making.

"All right, old man," said Jiggers. "Now, run along home and finish up the job, and then I'll talk to you."

THOUSAND CANADIANS IN CASUALTY LISTS

June 26.—Approximately 10,000 names have appeared in lists issued by the Militia since the Germans made attack on the Ypres salient. As approximately 23,000 names had previously been issued, this means that in number equal the first Canadian contingent which sailed from the latter part of October, that the lists will continue for a few days yet, before all the names of those who suffered in the recent German attack are in, they number twelve thousand. It is estimated that so long as the Canadian contingent is in the Ypres salient, the casualties will run from 10,000 to 15,000 per day.

ELECTION IN NORTH PERTH

John Hay of Listowel has been elected by the Liberals in North Perth, opposing John A. Mekins, of the Conservative party, in an election rendered necessary by the resignation of James Torrance, a Conservative member, to become a Customs Officer. The date of the election is July 10th. The Conservatives are in this riding in 1911.

Of this large majority, however, the government seems anxious to secure its bye-election in the last general election very poor and there are indications that North Perth will add to the disappointment. Desperate efforts have been made by Hon. Howland and Hon. I. B. Lucas, to drag the bilingual question into the Federal election, but provincial politics, but not to stir up discord in North Perth is likely to be resented. The Liberal Party on a provincial rights in the North, clearly stated in the recent legislation in a speech by Mr. Rowell of which the following is an extract:—

BRITISH CONTINUE TO RAID GERMANS

LONDON, June 27.—Activity by British patrols in raiding German lines, the repulse of a German attack near the Ypres-Menin Canal, probably by the Canadians, and the defeating of an aircraft force of four Fokkers, two of which were brought down, are the features of the British official report issued to-night. The report is as follows:—

"Last night, south of Ypres salient, a German attack was repulsed near the Ypres-Menin Canal.

"All along the front our patrols were very active, entering enemy trenches at numerous points and inflicting many casualties and capturing a few prisoners. Early this morning we successfully exploded two mines near Loos. In connection with one of these explosions the Leinster Regiment inflicted many casualties on the enemy during a successful raid.

"Yesterday in the air numerous hostile aircraft were encountered on the enemy's side of the line. Five of our machines engaged four Fokkers, two of which were brought down and fell out of control. Two more of the enemy's machines were driven down in the course of the day. Our casualties: One machine missing."

The German statement says:—

"On the British front and the northern wing of the French army, patrol fighting developed. Numerous gas and smoked clouds floated towards us. They did no damage to the Germans, and at some places floated back to the enemy trenches. The enemy fire was directed with special intensity against us on both sides of the Somme."

RUSSIANS TAKE GREAT NUMBER OF PRISONERS

LONDON, June 27.—Almost 200,000 prisoners were taken by the Russian army under General Brusiloff between June 4 and June 23 in the great offensive against the Austrians and Germans in Galicia and Volhynia, the exact figures as given being 198,972, of whom 4031 are officers. The trophies captured between those dates include 219 guns, 644 machine guns, 194 bombthrowers, 146 artillery caissons and 38 searchlights.

In the south, their flank in Bukovina having been cleared of the enemy, the Russians have made a further advance west of Czernowitz, driving the Austrians back to the Roudovetz River, an affluent of the Pruth River. The present endeavor is to advance on Kolomea and Stanislaw. Zablotoff, where the Roudovetz and Pruth rivers join, is about ten miles east of Kolomea, the next station ahead and the next objective for the Russians.

BIG BATTLE CONTINUES.

In northeastern Galicia and southern Volhynia the big battle on whose issue depends the possession of Kovel, Vladimir-Volynski and Brody, continues to rage with the Prussians maintaining an impenetrable front against the Austrians and the Germans. An offensive attempted by the Germans on the road from Lutsk to Kovel was repulsed. After crossing the Shara river, southwest of Lipsk, and near Lake Vygonovskoye, the Germans were dislodged and thrown

BOYS AND GIRLS AS WORKERS.

"Every one at work" is the call during War Time. The more men recruited, the greater the responsibility on those left at home. Men who have worked hard and saved some money so as to spend their old age in comfort will be turning in again to help their sons on the farms or will step in to take the places of some who have joined the Colours. Women, the busiest of whom seem always able to do something more, will be dividing their time between household duties and outdoor work. Young men from the farm will no doubt cut short their term at school or college and lend a hand at spring work and stay with farm operations until the crops are harvested. Large numbers of soldiers will get temporary leave. Are there any others who can lend a hand in producing? What about the boys and girls who have been receiving instruction in school gardening? A pamphlet just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture sets forth in illustrated and descriptive form how school garden work has been carried on in all the provinces of Canada. What are the boys and girls doing now? What is their education and training worth? How is their opportunity to demonstrate at home in the most practical manner what they have been taught at school. The boys and girls of Canada, thousands in number, should be able to do their bit in conducting small gardens at home. Boys and girls patriotic gardens should produce tons upon tons of fresh vegetables for their home supply and they can readily learn how to put up the surplus for winter use. What pleasure they can get this year in growing food in the home garden and thus helping their fathers and mothers! Production along this line is patriotism.

Then what about waste material? Old papers and rags are needed in our industries, so are metals and bottles and rubber and a score of other things. The country needs material and cannot afford to have waste. The saving and use of waste are as important as production. Boys and girls can make money out of scrap.

The soldiers at the front would like to get news from home. Boys and girls can send them some papers. Wrap up the papers and mail them to The Canadian Red Cross, 14 Cockspur Street, London, S. W., England.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS.

chants and manufacturers. They talk to the people they want to reach in the papers closely read by them. There are no worth-while farmers anywhere in Canada who are not readers of their local, town or village newspaper. To tell them, in the columns of these papers, what experiments of our best farmers showed, at times like this, would cost but little and lead to millions of dollars worth of increased production. The farmers are yearning for this very information.

We are told to economize to meet the tremendous burdens, which war is imposing upon us, but if we curtail our purchases, there will be that much less employment for the workers in our shops and factories. The business-like methods is to increase production that we may have more money. As Directors General of Agriculture some of our ministers are a joke. We spend millions finding what to do, then neglect to tell the people—for whom the work is done, who ought to know, who want to learn—anything about it.

This is a subject the press and business men should agitate. It means more money.

A million spent in intelligent talks in the small daily and country weekly press, telling the farmers the money-making things to do—that the experts and successful farmers have discovered—and how to do them, would produce tens of millions for distribution among all classes in Canada.

Passing of the Musk Ox.

The musk ox is fast following the buffalo to commercial extinction, and its fur will be in a few years as hard to find as a first class buffalo robe is today. The animal is found on the shores of the Arctic ocean in the Mackenzie district, the farther north the better the fur. Eskimos hunt the musk ox, which is very gentle and easily taken. The pelts are shipped by dog team and canoe down to the fur trading posts of the Canadian west. Owing to the distance of the musk ox habitat from civilization, very few skins can be brought down at a time, and the number of robes on the market each season is necessarily limited. Because of the northerly latitudes in which the animal lives, the musk ox has very thick fur. At the base of the long, flowing hair, sometimes forty inches in length, which is the distinguishing the Shara river, southwest of Lipsk, and near Lake Vygonovskoye, the Germans were dislodged and thrown back and the Russians retain their old positions. On the Kolki front, on the Stokhod river, the enemy continues the bombardment of the Russian lines with heavy guns. Infantry and artillery firing is the feature of the action farther south.

ALLIED FORCES' BIG OFFENSIVE BELIEVED NEAR

OTTAWA, Ont., June 26.—It has been evident for some time around militia headquarter that big British offensive was expected. The rapidity with which troops have been sent across the Atlantic has only been equalled by a similar movement of Canadian troops from England to France.

Just previous to the German offensive at the Ypres salient the fourth Canadian division was practically mobilized in England under Major-General David Watson, who commanded an Ontario battalion in the first division and won his promotion on the field to command a brigade and then a division. In France at that time were three Canadian divisions and a certain number of corps troops. From these corps troops the shattered third division has been brought up to strength and also the establishments of men and officers in the first and second divisions have been recruited to their authorized number.

The reserve of officers in England have been heavily drawn upon. It is believed here that not only are the four divisions all now in France, but that there has been recruited a large reserve of corps troops, ready to be drawn upon to keep the four divisions to full strength.

LEAVE CUT SHORT.

During the past month many Canadian officers in England on leave or taking special training have been ordered to report for duty at once. Most of these officers were entitled to leave and many were fitting themselves for special military duty, and the orders for them to rejoin their commands came unexpectedly, which has given rise to the opinion that an immediate offensive is contemplated.

There have been in all 215,000 men sent across the Atlantic, but from these must be deducted about 25,000 wastage in killed, wounded, sick and for those who have been wounded and missing. This is making allowance for those who have been wounded and rejoined their regiments. This leaves 190,000 effective men, and of these 80,000 are in the four divisions, 20,000 in corps troops and 90,000 in England ready to cross the channel when required.

WHAT OF CANADIANS ?

Some Ottawa military men do not expect the Canadians to be in the first attack on the German lines. They reason that having held back the Germans in the Ypres salient they will be permitted to recuperate and act as reserves for a time, but others say that such veterans as the first division will surely be utilized to drive home the big push.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS.

From Financial Post.

The abnormal rains in many parts of Canada have so interfered with farm work that it is now too late to plant many of the usual crops. Much land will go idle, or, if planted with the usual crops, will give poor results. This means farmers will have less money to spend with their local merchants for supplies of all kinds; manufacturers will have fewer orders, banks will have smaller deposits, there will be less money and higher rates for investment in municipal bonds and other securities.

But live Ministers of Agriculture at Ottawa could have retrieved much of the situation. For the lessened farm revenues this year they will be directly to blame.

At our agricultural colleges, and experimental farms, we have a lot of splendid public servants. No men in Canada give better results for the money we pay them. As a result of experiments, they know exactly what it is most profitable to plant at this late date, and what is not. For example, it is too late for wheat, barley or oats, but experiments show that peas, beans, and other crops may be put in. The trouble is very few farmers know this. The Ministers of Agriculture have not told them, or, if they have, they have used Fourteen Century Bell Ringing methods. That is, calling meetings which few attend or sending out bulletins which fewer read, because neither are timely. All the farmers can be reached by the methods pursued by modern mer-

A Continuous Performance.

Once upon a time there was a poor and friendless young man, who one day received from an older man a short letter of encouragement and confidence. The young man, not knowing how to express himself, did not answer the letter, but at a critical moment it had such an influence upon him that he took new life and eventually made a remarkable success. Years later he met the older man and said, "If it had not been for the letter you once wrote me I would not now be where I am, but it has always troubled me to think that I never acknowledged it."

"But you have been acknowledging it every day since," said the older man.

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, district attorney, because of his fight on the vice and liquor trusts, is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. The fight is continued by his son, Bruce, who is elected district attorney. Several efforts to frame up the intrepid young district attorney fail. When Larnigan saves the children of one of the conspirators this man agrees to expose the trust and is murdered. Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust, over the dictaphone hears of a plot to kill Larnigan, with whom she is in love. She warns him, he escapes, and two more of the conspirators are killed. When Bruce Larnigan goes to Chicago to fight the grain trust he is assaulted and thrown overboard. He is rescued by his brother Tom, who takes up the fight. Dodson, head of the grain trust, fearing exposure, kills himself. Tom Larnigan opens a fight on the textile trust. Ayres, the head of the trust, in an effort to kill Tom, kills his own son. Dorothy, gagged and bound, is taken by the conspirators to a roadhouse.

SIXTH EPISODE

The Railroad Monopoly

By JAMES OPPENHEIM,

Author of "The Beloved" and
 "Songs For the New Age"

TOM LARNIGAN'S victory over the textile trust and the tragic defeat of the plans Ayers had made for his destruction encouraged him vastly, but not more than did the discovery that he was not, after all, friendless and alone in his fight.

Ben Travers, his old friend of the Alaska mining camps, had come back into his life, and Ben had millions and the will, as well as the power, to help Tom. Harry Stevens, too, the young newspaper man who had enlisted in Bruce's war against the grafters, had sought Tom out and promised his aid.

Tom gripped the hands of his friends in turn after he and Ben Travers discussed the latest warning to drop investigating the railroad monopoly.

"Well, I can't make you quit," he said, "and I don't mind saying that I am mighty glad because I can't. There are no two men I would rather have with me in a fight, and it looks as though we have a real fight ahead tray Tom, nor that the two thugs with whom she had gone had become suspicious and tied her, hand and foot, in the bottom of the car while they went into a roadhouse to acquire courage for the task before them. Yet, even at that moment, Dorothy was in flight from the two thugs.

They had not meant to stay long in the roadhouse, but one drink had suggested another, and their resistance hadn't been strong. As a result, Dorothy had been able to loosen her bonds and get out of the car. She rode off in the car just as the two thugs emerged, and as soon as they recovered from their astonishment they gave chase, stealing a motorcycle that had been standing by the car.

Dorothy had a good start; but, unhappily, the gasoline tank of the car was almost empty, and she soon saw that she was sure to be overhauled and again made a prisoner. Her experience with them made her dread this and led her to be willing to take any risk to avoid the fate she felt was in store for her at their hands.

And so at a turn in the road she abandoned the car and fled down toward the water, which was near by, as the road at this point wound in and out near the sound. At a small dock a motorboat was lying. It seemed to be empty, and Dorothy sprang aboard and got the boat going just as her pursuers tore down to the water's edge. She felt that in the boat she was safe and that she would be able to explain her desperate need to its owner. But, to her consternation, she heard sounds within the tiny cabin, and the next moment the owner emerged.

"Kitty!" cried Dorothy. "Kitty Rockford!"

It was not a man, but a girl of Dorothy's own age, who owned the boat. And Kitty Rockford was her best friend. Chance had leaned heavily in Dorothy's direction at last! There were exclamations of amazement from both of them, and explanations followed.

"I'd never have dared!" cried Kitty. "Dorothy, you're the bravest girl I ever knew! But you're safe now. We'll go right home, and I'll have them send you to New York in a special train."

narly would have passed as a prosperous merchant, but who was now in a plainly disheveled condition.

"My name is Burrows, John Burrows," said the newcomer, advancing and speaking in a thin, nervous voice. "I am the president of the Consolidated Milk Supply company. You are ruining me, Mr. Harding, with your ruinous price reductions in the city milk supply. I have come to ask you what terms you are willing to give and call off your fight."

"Terms!" snapped Harding, clinching his fists. "Do you think that I would stoop to make terms with a man of your type, Burrows? You are one of the miserable, despicable grafters of the Secret Fifteen. You are a man whom every decent citizen should be ashamed to see at liberty. You are one of the men responsible for the condition of poor Bruce Larnigan and for God knows how many more crimes! I shall tear you and yours limb from limb before I am through!"

Impulsively Harding started toward the other, and quickly Burrows turned, with stark terror in his eyes, and ran straight out over the bridge! Dorothy cried out to him to come back, but the man either did not hear or was afraid to stop. On he dashed until suddenly he reached the rotten planks in the center and plunged with a wild shriek through the opening down into the chasm below.

Dorothy sank back into Harding's arms, sobbing piteously, with the doomed man's shriek still ringing in her ears. Another of the Fifteen had paid the penalty of the Larnigan vengeance.

With the death of Burrows came the collapse, final and irrevocable, of the graft trust.

Realizing that they plotted and fought in vain against the energetic crusaders, Bruce and Tom Larnigan and Robert Harding, ably assisted by Dorothy Maxwell, the survivors of the formerly omnipotent Fifteen sought

ALASKA'S COAST

Longer Than the Distance
 World at the Equat

Have you any idea of the the Alaska coast line? The territory are washed by oceans. These are the Arctic north, Bering sea on the the Pacific on the south. The islands, off the Alaska peninsula separated from each other mainland by a network of rocks and much of southwestern eastern Alaska is made up of talnous islands that have various shapes and sizes. The islands are the tops of mountains in the waters. They rise in sphericals, some of which are of feet above the water and den beneath it, lying there and ready to rip open the hull as the iceberg of the Atlantic the Titanic.

The extent of the Alaska its windings surpasses the United States proper. It is than that of all our states (cific from Puget sound to the ary of Mexico added to the states on the Atlantic, including. All told, it is more than 10,000 miles long, or longer than the around the world at the equator in proportion to its length it is perhaps more dangers than the coast line on earth.

Nevertheless not one-half yet been sounded by the coast vessels, and more than half of the coast line is not marked or by any aids to navigation. The Herald.

"I am mighty glad because I can't. There are no two men I would rather have with me in a fight, and it looks as though we have a real fight ahead of us now. Bruce seems to think that we ought to look into the railroad monopoly that Charles Rockford has created."

Stevens nodded. "I'll drop down to Wall street and see what I can find on the financial end. I know that any reporter on the street would do anything I asked him. Then you and Ben can follow up Rockford personally. Have you looked into his movements at all?"

"Yes," said Tom. "He's going to Boston from New Hartford this afternoon, just his private car and an engine. If I could only get on that special!"

"Good!" echoed Ben. "I'll go with you!"

Tom scouted around now, afraid to ask questions too openly, until he found out which engineer was to be in charge of President Rockford's special that afternoon on the run to Boston. He left Ben to watch him and went to call on Rockford. As he expected, he was unable to see the head of the railroad. But he managed to drop a note addressed to Rockford and containing a warning that he had better mend his ways. He told Ben of this.

"That will prepare him," he said. "He'll know who I am when he sees me."

"I've been talking a little with our man," said Ben. "I think we can land him all right. He says he'd rather work in a glue factory than here. He seems to be sore on the whole works, from Rockford down."

And Tom, when he in turn talked to the engineer, found that Ben had not exaggerated. He listened to the man's complaints for a time and then decided to make a proposition to him.

"Look here," he said. "I can show you I know how to run an engine, and my friend here knows all about firing. It's worth $500 to me to be in your cab this afternoon when that special goes out. How about it?"

The engineer agreed.

Somehow it did not occur to either of them to distrust the engineer or to suspect him. And yet, no sooner were they out of sight than he made his way as fast as he could to President Rockford's office, told of the bribe and of what he had done.

Stanford Stone was with Rockford when the engineer made his report.

He leaned over and spoke confidentially to Rockford, who grew a little white as he listened, but nodded finally.

"All right," he said. "I'll do it. I'll stay back here, but they'll think I'm aboard—well, it will serve them right! You can trust Dunn?"

"I think so," said Stone grimly. "He knows he must make good this time or get into trouble. He's fallen down hard twice lately. Why, even yesterday he was to send two men to Lyndham, with a woman, to get something on this Tom Larnigan. His two men have disappeared, and they never took the woman at all. They didn't wait for her, but went off with some other woman—on a joy ride, I suppose!"

Neither Stone nor Rockford, of course, knew the truth as to this, which was that Dorothy Maxwell, learning of the plot, had taken the place of the woman who was to be right home, and I'll have them send you to New York in a special train."

Tom and Ben Travers Discussed the Latest Warning to Drop the Railroad Probe.

"I don't want to go to New York!" said Dorothy. "It's Lyndham I must get to as soon as I can."

"All right," said Kitty. "That's on the way to Boston. We can get you there. I'll hurry to New Hartford as quickly as I can."

"But what on earth brought you just here?"

"I was out for an early spin, and something went wrong with the engine. I fixed it up, and then I went into the cabin to clean up. That's why I was hidden when you came aboard."

But neither Rockford nor Tom Larnigan knew anything at this time of the movements of Dorothy Maxwell. Rockford, at Stone's dictation practically, since he himself had had an entirely different plan, had contrived a trap for Tom Larnigan and Ben Travers that exceeded in diabolical ingenuity anything the graft syndicate had yet attempted. Tom and Ben were to take the special out, but the private car was to be empty, and at a drawbridge

"Will you help me to the rescue, Mr. Harding?" asked Dorothy, pointing to the hat and ignoring Stone. Harding followed the direction of her pointing hand, saw the hat on the farther edge of the chasm-like ravine and offered his arm to the girl to help her across the bridge. She accepted with a little smile, and the two stepped on to the planks, while Stone drew back with stolid face. If they reached the middle of the bridge the two would plunge to their deaths through the rotten planks he had arranged.

Stone calmly drew out a cigarette and lighted it. And then he dropped the match with an imprecation. Something had made Dorothy Maxwell pause suddenly, wheel squarely about and stare back at her father.

"There is something on your mind, dad!" cried Dorothy. "There is something you are trying to tell me and cant. Oh, what is it?"

For a horrible moment the lips of Maxwell worked convulsively, but no words came from them.

Again the lips of the paralytic worked with frantic eagerness, and now as the girl bent piteously nearer she heard husky, broken words.

"Don't cross the bridge, daughter—if you—value—your—life!"

Dorothy sprang to her feet and crusaders, Bruce and Tom Larnigan and Robert Harding, ably assisted by Dorothy Maxwell, the survivors of the formerly omnipotent Fifteen sought peace.

The terms were imposed by Bruce Larnigan, now happily recovering, and Robert Harding and were ratified by Tom Larnigan, returning from Brazil. These terms were severe, but just. All nefarious interference with the business of the country was stopped immediately. So far as possible restitution was made to the victims of the graft trust from the private fortunes of Stanford Stone, head and front of the graft trust, and his accomplices.

Naturally all this was not accomplished without much toil, for the ramifications of the graft trust's operations had extended far and wide into American life. But it was done, and then Stanford Stone, with a final malice on the Larnigans and all connected with them, sailed for a long vacation in South America.

Dorothy Maxwell found a loving husband in Bruce Larnigan, and the two devoted themselves to making as comfortable as possible the few remaining years of her stricken father, who had, of course, been compelled to sever all connection with business. And Tom Larnigan, returning triumphantly from South America with much important evidence of smuggling for the government's secret service, was made happy by Kitty Rockford's acceptance of his proposal.

Rice in Ecuador.

Rice is the principal article of diet of all Ecuadorians, rich and poor. The country produces excellent rice in limited quantities and imports largely. The crop is harvested in May by stripping the grains with the hands, the average yield being twenty bushels per acre. The rice growing lands are rented to small farmers, who sell the harvested crops to town merchants. The latter in turn send the grain to the rice mill, exchanging 160 pounds of the unhulled rice, if of good quality, for 300 pounds of the hulled product. If of inferior grade a larger toll is taken. This includes storage for six months. Some of the very small growers hull their rice with a flail and winnow it with the wind. The husks are thrown away, but the remaining waste is fed to the horses.—Exchange.

Something to Steal.

An English prisoner had for the tenth time been convicted for theft and to avoid punishment for his last offense had promised to enlist. The judge was greatly perplexed as to what degree of leniency he should deal out. Addressing the counsel, he remarked: "It is difficult to see what use such a man as your client would be in the army." Counsel for the defense, seeing that the judge was in excellent humor, deciding a bit of facetiousness might accomplish what a tearful plea would not, replied: "Well, my lord, he might be usefully employed in stealing a march on the enemy."

exactly made connections with the blouse beneath it. Yes, those were indeed difficult days.

Today neatness counts as much as ever, but there are not so many pitfalls for the woman who would be neat.

Neatness of footgear counts more than ever before. The shoes must be spotless, well polished and in good repair. Heels that slant are an outrage on good dressing; moreover, they are decidedly unhealthful.

It goes without saying that the hair must be neat. A hair net sometimes produces a stiff effect, but that is better than a sloppy one. So choose the hair net in windy weather, and learn to adjust it becomingly. This year, when our milliners tell us to wear our hats straight on the head, neither tipped to left or right, neat hair is more than ever essential.

Immaculate gloves count for much in producing a smart appearance. Soiled gloves, ripped gloves or worn gloves are a disgrace. Nowadays, when washable gloves can be bought at almost any price, it is possible for everybody to have clean gloves. The cotton ones, if clean, always look well—indefinitely better than soiled kid ones. And a stitch now and then will keep gloves always well mended.

Then there is the handbag. In this case the more you pay the better, for an expensive handbag outwears two cheaper ones and looks better the last day it is carried than the cheap one does after the first few weeks.

There are little details, like the handkerchief, which should always be sheer and snow white, that count quite as much as some of the bigger things in giving the impression of smartness, which the modern woman aims to attain.

Tulips, daffodils and most other bulbs pot, but hyacinths appear best when planted singly. The pots should not be large. A little broken pottery is put over the hole in the bottom for drainage, and the pot is filled with enough soil so that when the bulbs are placed in it they will be just un-space is left at the top of the pot for

After potting, the bulbs are to be

How to Freshen Up Your Old Gown So It Looks Actually Frenchy.

Fashions change so rapidly that women of limited means are often sore tried in their attempts to keep up with these periodic and quick movements. A Frenchwoman, whose husband was among the first to respond to his country's call, saw her opportunity and seized it. She made the fact known that she was clever at adapting clothing and that she was ready to exercise her skill on reasonable terms. Plain materials are easily added to, the introduction of contrast is often permissible, and the present vogue for trimming has greatly facilitated her enterprise. The tunic was one of her best resources when she first started her business. Now she finds that the contrast hip yoke and the panel serve her very well.

Frequently sale bargains come in admirably for her purpose, and she is always ready not only to assist in adapting, but to give her aid in choosing from the big stocks of rich and beautiful material which are shown. A serge gown done up recently had the last season's bodice remodeled into a bolero arranged over an undervest made of a piece of rich silk picked up at a sale and sold off because this winter's patterns will not be brought out again for another season.

EARLY BULB PLANTING.

Expert Tips About How to Manage Your Lily Bed.

Bulbs are real harbingers of spring, and there are no plants so easily grown nor so inexpensive as hyacinths, tulips or daffodils. Inside a bulb are many thickened scales, which contain enough stored food to develop the blooms. Because of this nourishment such bulbs as the hyacinth, paper white narcissus and the Chinese sacred lily may be grown in water if desired, though water contains practically no plant food. The whole growing period is supported by the food in storage.

For the same reason the soil used for potting bulbs needs to be loose and porous rather than rich, so that Shad Delicacies.

Baked Shad.—Try to get a thick fish. Most dealers scale the fish for you. Remove the head and tail, split down the back and remove the backbone and the small bones along the edge. Wash in cold water, but do not allow fish to lie in the water, and dry with a piece of cheesecloth. Brush a shallow pan with one tablespoonful of drippings, lay the shad in, skin side down, sprinkle with one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of white pepper. Melt teaspoonful of butter and put over the shad, dust with a little flour and pour over one-half cupful of milk; put into a very hot oven twenty-five to thirty minutes. It should be light brown, and the hotter the oven the better the shad will be. If it browns in less than fifteen minutes reduce the heat, as it takes twenty-five to thirty minutes to bake thoroughly.

Directions For Frying Shad Roe.—Wipe the roe with damp piece of cheesecloth. Put one tablespoonful of drippings into fry pan; when hot put in the roe, cover with tin plate or lid and fry very slowly ten minutes. Remove cover and turn carefully with cake turner so as not to break the roe. Dust with salt and pepper, cover and fry for five minutes, uncover and fry light brown on both sides. Serve with lemon and garnish with parsley. Always be careful not to break the roe.

WATCH YOUR SEED.

Grain smuts and blights were unusually severe in 1915 owing largely to the cool, wet season. The seed, then, that will be sown the coming spring will have an abundance of smut spores or germs under the hulls, in the furrows and even inside the kernels. This statement applies particularly to oats smut and barley smut, but certain other widespread diseases, such as the leaf stripe disease of barley, come in the same class.

If such seed is sown without first killing the spores loss from smut is sure to occur.—Wisconsin Station.

FIG CULTURE.

Great Demand For Quick Bearing Varieties of These Fruit Trees.

The fig is one of the oldest fruits known, and since it has become known that figs can be grown in pots and fruited in the conservatory or in the open ground, where there are three months warm summer weather, there has been a great demand for the quick bearing varieties by people anxious to grow fresh figs. These varieties begin to fruit by the time the young shoots are six inches long and form a fig at every leaf. Unlike apples, peaches and other fruits of the kind, the fig is more like the raspberry or blackberry in the respect that the fruit does not ripen all at one time. Figs continue to develop and ripen until checked by cold weather. For pot culture the fig requires about the same treatment as a rubber plant, and if supplied with plenty of water the fruit will ripen. Vigorous plants will have fruit in all stages of development, from the smallest green fruit to the ripe figs ready for picking and eating.

Celeste bears rather small fruit of high quality, but is not very productive. Ischia has a green exterior, the inside of the fruit being blood red. Hirta Japan is an abundant bearer, and Magnolia bears large pear shaped fruit.

One fig enthusiast writes that his figs stood zero weather last year, though when first set out, freezing weather would kill them. As they become acclimated the plants stand colder weather. A gardener in Pennsylvania says her fig tree has withstood twenty winters with protection. The tree is bent over to the ground in winter and covered with straw and earth.

Poultry Tuberculosis.

Chickens are subject to tuberculosis. Until recently there has been no test that could be used in determining whether a chicken had tuberculosis or not. Dr. L. van Es of the North Dakota experiment station has discovered a test similar to that used in testing cattle for tuberculosis. When tuberculin is injected into the skin of the wattle or comb a very pronounced swelling develops in case the bird is tuberculous, while if it is free from it no swelling results. The method is very accurate when care is used.

One flock that was tested gave the following results: Percentage tuberculous, one year old, 3 1-3; two years old, 24 1-3; three years old, 86%, and four years old, 85%. The obvious lesson from this is that the old birds are much more affected than are the young ones.

Weed Puller For Harrow.

Much time is often lost in clearing weeds from harrow teeth, especially those on spring tooth harrows. The driver must occasionally stop and pull the weeds out by hand. This is usually a great annoyance as well as a time loser. One of our good readers uses the devices illustrated. The one at the bottom consists of a handle of any convenient length and two pieces of iron attached to one end, as indicated.

In operation this tool is carried in the hand. When weeds collect around a harrow tooth it is thrust forward against them or the hook is placed upon the bunch and given a pull. Thus the operator is able to continue progress without even losing a single step, to say nothing of halting his team. A similar device may be made, as shown at the top, from a crooked stick or with only the hook (see center). When made in this way it can often be used for lifting individual harrow teeth or even sections of the harrow out of the way of snags and stones.—American Agriculturist.

THE SPRING CANKERWORM.

Much Damage Will Result Unless Effective Measures Are Taken.

[Prepared by Oklahoma station.]

Unless orchard and shade trees are closely inspected they will be so badly infested with the spring cankerworm before the owner is aware of it that much damage will result before a control measure can be made effective.

The most effective application is a spray consisting of at least two pounds of arsenate of lead dissolved in fifty gallons of water. Either the paste or powdered form of lead arsenate may be used. First mix this poison in a half gallon or more of water, then add to the remainder of the water. Mix and keep the solution stirred so that it will be uniformly strong.

Apply this solution with a spray pump, applying as soon as the worms begin to injure the foliage. If appli-

RECLAIMING OLD ORCHARDS.

Neglected Apple Trees Can Be Brought Back to Vigorous Growth.

The reclamation of neglected fruit trees is a problem which many farmers have to face, especially those who have recently moved to a new home- stead or have come from the city to take up farming life. However small the place and modest its farming pre- tensions an apple orchard will usually be found somewhere. The question to be settled immediately will be whether the trees are worth saving or whether the farmer will be justified in stripping them to make place for potatoes or cabbages.

To arrive at a businesslike solution of this question the chances of suc- cessful reclamation, its probable cost cation is not made on apple trees be- fore they blossom it will be poor pol- icy to spray until after blossoming is over, for by that time the worms will have done their damage. Furthermore, if spraying is not done before the worms are a half inch long it will be necessary to double or even treble the amount of poison advised per fifty gal- lons of water.

The spring cankerworms pass the winter as pupae in the soil beneath the trees on the foliage of which they feed. During the early spring they pupate and issue from the soil. The females have no wings, but crawl up into the treetops. The males have wings and fly up into the trees to ap- proach the females. Eggs are soon deposited in the cracks of the limbs of the tree. These hatch about the time the buds begin to open, but are seldom noticed until they have practi- cally defoliated the trees, although and the returns to be expected from a rehabilitated orchard must be intelli- gently considered.

First of all, it should be said that the methods here to be described are hardly worth while from the economic point of view unless as much as one acre or say thirty trees are to be worked over. They are, however, equally applicable, of course, to a few trees, or even one if because of its character or associations the country dweller would save it at any cost.

What can be done to make old, neg- lected, unsightly, useless trees vigor- ous and productive is surprising. One ambitious farmer by whom a straggly, unkempt apple orchard of twelve acres had been grudgingly taken over in the purchase of a small suburban farm was well advised to spare the ax. He applied modern scientific methods in- stead. Within five years a small yield of almost useless fruit had been mul- tiplied by ten, and the output was an apple of the highest grade.

First the likelihood of success is de- termined by the original suitability of the site and the soil of the orchard.

the ancient burial places of Peru.

One of these consists of two vases whose bodies are joined one to the other, with a hole or opening between them. The neck of one of these vases is closed, with the exception of a small opening, in which a clay pipe is inserted leading to the body of the whistle. The closed neck of this double vase is modeled into a representation of a bird's head.

When a liquid is poured into the open necked vase the air is compressed in the other, and in escaping through the narrow opening is forced into the whistle, the vibration producing the sounds.

Many of these sounds represent the notes of birds; one in the collection at the British museum imitates the notes of the robin or some other member of the thrush tribe peculiar in Peru.

of the tree. These hatch about the time the buds begin to open, but are seldom noticed until they have practically defoliated the trees, although they may be easily observed if looked for.

When the limbs of infested trees are jarred or shaken the worms suspend themselves in the air by means of a silken thread until after the disturbance, then ascend said thread to their feeding places and proceed to develop. After development they in like manner descend to the ground, which they enter to a depth of three to eight inches, and there remain until the following spring.

Thorough control during a single season will prevent serious infestation the following year. They are carried from one place to another mainly in the larval stage by animals such as frequent orchards and trees.

Renewing the Rhubarb Bed.

The rhubarb bed that has stood for a number of years in the same place should be taken up and the clumps cut into pieces with at least one or two good eyes and these replanted in a new spot or, if space is limited, even on the old spot, but in a well prepared and very thoroughly enriched bed. Rhubarb beds become root bound, and the soil becomes so full of roots that there is no area left for feeding. Replanting is the only remedy.

PERSONAL.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Two years ago I was in a very nervous, generally rundown condition, so that I awoke in the morning more tired than when I retired. The doctor thought I had heart trouble and treated me for it but I got no benefit. I heard of Dr. Pierce's remedies through a friend who had been to your Invalids' Hotel for an operation (which proved entirely successful) and I at once got the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took three bottles altogether and at the end of three weeks I felt entirely cured and have been well and strong since, without a single bad spell. I stopped taking it about three months ago and am glad to tell any one how splendidly your medicine has healed me."—Mrs. JOHN LAWIN, 53 Niagara St., St. Catharines, Ont.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotic to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

apple of the highest grade.

First the likelihood of success is determined by the original suitability of the site and the soil of the orchard—one will assume them passable—and the surviving vigor of the trees. Age is not such a great factor. Ordinarily one would go slow about beginning work on a tree more than forty or fifty years old, but truly remarkable results have recently been obtained with such trees to which was left a fair share of vigor.

As for the cost, this can be made surprisingly low, for most of the operations involved may be performed by the most ordinary labor. Thirty dollars a year per acre is a fair allowance.

The actual task of making over an abandoned orchard is usually divided into four principal parts: Pruning, fertilizing, cultivating and spraying. To these are sometimes added surgery and thinning.

As regards the cost some very illuminating figures have recently been presented by individuals and in United States government reports.

The expenditure per tree has been put variously between $1 and $5. One apparently safe estimate is based on the experience of a farmer in New York state. He "restored" a forty-year-old, high topped, scale infected and otherwise neglected Baldwin apple tree. And here is what he said it cost him to do it:

|----------------------------------|--------|
| Spraying material..... | $1.00 |
| Applying same..... | 1.00 |
| Pruning and surgery..... | .75 |
| Cultivation and fertilizing..... | .75 |

Total$3.50

That tree is now bearing eight to ten barrels of apples. A rich return surely for that farmer's labor. A government publication gives these figures, carefully compiled, for the first year's reclamation work:

|--------------------------------|--------|
| Plowing..... | $2.00 |
| Manure—ten loads..... | 10.00 |
| Hauling manure..... | 5.00 |
| Pruning and hauling brush..... | 5.00 |
| Ditching and cultivating..... | 2.00 |
| Spraying, four times..... | 6.00 |

Wood Ashes Contain Plant Food.

Unleached wood ashes contain large quantities of available plant food, approximately 4 per cent potash and 1 per cent phosphoric acid, says Dr. Charles K. Francis, chemist for the experiment station at Oklahoma A. and M. college. The world's supply of potash is controlled by Germany, and consequently at this time potash has a very high value. Wood ashes of the above composition has a money value of about $20 a ton, according to Dr. Francis.

A reception will be given in Trinity church on Tuesday evening, July 4th, at 8 o'clock, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. DeMille. A short programme will be rendered, after which light refreshments will be served. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Sergt. Ponton, of Cobourg, formerly of Belleville, was in Napanee on Friday recruiting for the Coburg heavy battery to proceed overseas as soon as the unit is complete. This is the only heavy seige battery in Canada, west of Montreal, and offers an opportunity for all available recruits to get overseas immediately. Nearly fifty men and officers are sent overseas every two months and this is a splendid opportunity for good recruits.

On Saturday night last about 12.30 John Lawler, who has been working on Mr. Fred A. Perry's telephone line and rooming in the Perry block, fell from the third story window on to Dundas street, a distance of about 35 feet. Lawler was seen going to his room a few minutes previously, and it is supposed he was leaning out of the window and over-balanced. About half way down he fell across some electric light wires which somewhat broke his fall before landing on the pavement. When picked up he was bleeding profusely and unconscious. He was rushed to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, where he remained unconscious for days. His parents reside at Erinsville. As far as at present known he is likely to recover.

About six o'clock on Wednesday evening, the body of William Ryerson Sills was found floating in the Don River at Toronto. Mr. Sills, who has been a teacher in the Kingston High School, went to Toronto a few days ago for treatment for nervous trouble. A Kingston friend, Mr. G. A. McPherson on failing to hear from him requested the Toronto police to search for him. Messrs. McPherson and Donaldson, Kingston, went to Toronto and identified the body. The late Mr. Sills was a native in North Fredericksburgh and a former teacher in the Napanee Collegiate Institute. He was 50 years of age. PTE. "JIM" STEVENS.

Monday Mr. Frank Stevens two letters from France giving particulars of the injuries to their son, James B., on June. The letters were from Walker, and the Chaplain of the hospital. He is in an American. His wounds necessitated the amputation of his left foot below the knee. He is also suffering from wounds in the face which are slight, but his eyesight is good. The nurse, in her letter, said condition was more serious, and while his condition was only fair, he is getting along as could be expected. To Mrs. Stevens is extended the sympathy of all, and express words of encouragement in the hope that some time the condition of their son will be so much improved that he will be able to return to his family circle. "Jim" has "bit" and everyone is proud.
